

Cover Letter for New Zealand Visitor Visa Application

Dear Visa Officer,

1. Purpose of the Letter

My name is xxx (Passport No. [xxx]), currently pursuing my Ph.D. at xxx. I am applying for a New Zealand visitor visa together with my partner, xxx, who is listed as a secondary applicant in this joint application. I am writing to support my application for a New Zealand visitor visa and to explain the reasons, financial standing, and personal circumstances related to this trip.

2. Travel Intent

I plan to travel to New Zealand from [xxx] to [xxx], accompanied by my girlfriend, who is a full-time employee at a university in Shanghai. Due to our limited vacation time—as she is a working professional and I am a doctoral student—we are only able to visit a portion of New Zealand's iconic sites during this trip.

Our planned itinerary includes famous destinations across both the North and South Islands, such as:

- North Island: Auckland, Rotorua, Wellington, Lake Taupo, and Hobbiton
- South Island: Christchurch, Lake Tekapo, Queenstown, Milford Sound, Mt. Cook, and Fox Glacier

Because we cannot explore all the places of interest at once, I am applying for a 5-year multiple-entry visa so that we may return in the future during other holiday periods.

3. Financial Capability

Although I am currently a Ph.D. student, I previously worked full-time for three years at a major automotive research institute after earning my Master's degree. Thanks to my stable past income and prudent financial planning, I have accumulated sufficient savings to fully support this trip.

I have enclosed my recent bank statements, current deposit balance, and proof of financial investments to demonstrate my financial capacity.

In addition to my current bank balance, I have also received a recent deposit of RMB ¥xxx from my parents as living support. As I am currently a full-time Ph.D. student with a modest monthly stipend, my parents occasionally provide additional financial assistance to support my studies and daily living expenses.

This transfer represents approximately six months of my living costs, and reflects their ongoing support and my stable financial situation during the trip.

My partner has also provided financial documents in her part of the joint application. Together, we will use our combined funds to cover all travel expenses.

4. Ties to China

- I am currently enrolled as a full-time Ph.D. student at xxx, with a strong academic commitment in China.
- My girlfriend has a stable and long-term job in China.
- Both of us are only children, and we each bear family responsibilities to care for our parents.
- We also own a vehicle, which further reflects our financial stability and rooted lifestyle in China.

I have enclosed supporting documents related to our vehicle ownership.

These connections ensure that we will return to China after our travel.

5. Travel History

From April to December 2016, I participated in an academic exchange program in xxx for 8 months. During the entire stay, I fully complied with visa conditions and returned to China on time upon completion of the program.

This experience demonstrates my law-abiding behavior and sense of responsibility during international travel.

I have enclosed supporting documents related to this trip and my expired passport for reference.

Additionally, my partner has previously traveled to xxx, where she also complied with all entry and exit regulations.

Supporting documents for her travel history are included in her part of the joint application.

6. Future Career Plan

After completing my Ph.D., I hope to pursue postdoctoral research opportunities, potentially including positions at institutions in New Zealand, depending on research fit and academic development.

In the long term, I aspire to become a university associate professor, contributing to academic teaching and research with humility and dedication.

In addition, I have maintained a travel map and an English blog to document my journeys over the years:

- Travel Footprint Map (English): [URL masked]
- Travel Blog (English): [URL masked]

These reflect my long-standing interest in scenic travel and my genuine enthusiasm for discovering beautiful places.

Thank you for your kind consideration of my application. I am committed to fully complying with all visa regulations and will return to China on time after my temporary stay. This application is submitted on behalf of both myself and my partner, as we plan to travel and return together after this visit.

Yours sincerely,

xxx
